Candidate Statement (200 word limit):

Homelessness is skyrocketing and politicians have failed to solve this crisis – instead, it’s clear they’ve only made it worse.

Rather than moving quickly to get people off the streets and keep communities safe, establishment politicians are too busy pointing fingers and taking half measures. Housing is increasingly unaffordable, and our small businesses are struggling.

That’s why I’m running for City Council, where I will work to ensure accountability and a fresh approach to these issues to make our neighborhoods safer, reclaim our public spaces by getting people off the streets and into services, cut through the city’s bureaucracy to build housing faster, and increase access to affordable housing opportunities, so everyone has a place to live.

Ten years ago, I co-founded the youth nonprofit Improve Your Tomorrow, where we help thousands graduate high school, go to college, and provide workforce training so they can get a good paying job. Now I’m ready to bring my experience as a CEO of a successful, multimillion dollar nonprofit to City Council, where I will continue fighting for our families and neighborhoods.

I’d be honored to earn your vote.
