INTRODUCTION

The City of Sacramento's historic preservation program began in 1975 with the enactment of the city's first historic preservation ordinance. The current preservation ordinance No. 2006-063 was enacted in October 2006. The ordinance amends Chapter 17.134 of Title 17 of the Sacramento City Code.

The City Code provides for the compilation of the ordinances adopting designations and deletions of Landmarks, Contributing Resources and Historic Districts into the Sacramento Register of Historic & Cultural Resources.

This document includes the Sacramento Register listings, as of February 2007, of the City of Sacramento's designated Landmarks, Historic Districts, and Contributing Resources. It also includes any pending nominations of Landmark and Historic District/Contributing Resources properties at the time of the update.

This document also includes listings of other properties within certain Special Planning Districts that the City Council, by ordinance, has afforded historic preservation protections.

The document also includes current listings in the National Register of Historic Places, the California Register of Historical Resources, and the State of California's Historic Properties Directory for Sacramento.

For purposes of the California Historical Building Code (CHBC), all properties listed in the Sacramento, California and National Registers should be considered "qualified historic buildings." However, this document does not list all properties that may be eligible to be considered "qualified historic buildings" pursuant to CHBC.

For purposes of the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA), all properties listed in the Sacramento, California and National Registers, and those determined eligible should be considered "historic resources." However, this document does not list all properties that may be eligible to be considered "historic resources" pursuant to CEQA.

INFORMATION ON HOW TO FIND A PROPERTY'S LISTING-

This document is organized by type of designations, beginning with city designated Landmarks, listed by address. Then, city-designated Historic Districts are listed alphabetically, with maps showing each district's boundaries.

Also, the addresses of the properties listed in this document may not be the only addresses associated with a particular property. If you do not find the address you are looking for, but find one that is very close, it is possible that the two addresses are for the same property. Corner properties are also a challenge, since the property address may be on one of the streets and not the other, so check both addresses. Generally, the addresses shown in this document reflect the address associated with the property's parcel number in County records. This document does include the parcel number of the city-designated Landmarks and parcels within some city-designated Historic-Districts.

Also note that in the City of Sacramento, address numbering convention is generally as follows:

odd number addresses are found on the north and east sides of streets;

even number addresses are found on the south and west sides of streets.

In the Central City grid, numbering begins from the Sacramento River, Front Street, getting higher as one proceeds east along east/west LETTERED streets; and begins from A Street, getting higher as one proceeds south along north/south NUMBERED streets by increments of one thousand for each block.

1200-1300 Q Street Historic District

This Historic District consists of a two-block row of modest high basement buildings on Q Street, predominantly simple high basement cottages, on the half block behind Q Street. It is a cohesive row of buildings dating from 1885-1895. Its identity as a neighborhood is enhanced by the mature trees, which line its streets, and by the incompatibility of surrounding land uses. The houses are all in the same small scale, they have similar materials, texture, color, height, and set back, and there is a rhythm to their spacing and shape. The area also contains a rare example of a late nineteenth century simple Delta type cottage facing the alley and is located behind 1322 Q Street. Many Sacramento alleys once served as auxiliary residential streets lined with very simple cottages. Now, only this one remains of that formerly common street pattern. This neighborhood has always housed working class families as tenants and owners.

Three basement cottages from the Alkali Flat Historic District and one high basement Craftsman bungalow from 16th Street have been moved in the one half block area on the west side of 14th Street north of Q Street. These buildings were moved as part of a Capitol Area Development Authority project. They help to give an architectural feel of time and place to this District.

12th Street Commercial Historic District

The theme of this District relates the importance of this early commercial area and its transportation role. An early route to the gold fields of the north, 12th Street, has a long history of significance as a transportation, communication, and commercial corridor. Much of the original fabric of this activity has disappeared and what little remains has been largely modified. The advent of the automobile was an important element in the evolution of this street's current appearance and uses. The buildings within this District date from 1895 to 1912. This unique clustering of structures has retained early twentieth century feeling and association.

This is a small but distinctive neighborhood of simple working class cottages located between the wealthier neighborhoods of larger homes to the east and west. Perhaps it housed servants for those neighborhoods, as it was located near the same streetcar line. Most of the cottages were built in the 1880's and 1890's in variations of the simple high basement style with gable or hip roofs and very little ornamental detail. This District exhibits a rhythm in materials, texture, and setback.

This District is bounded by the railroad to the west, less cohesive residential areas to the north and south and by commercial spillover from 21st Street on the east.

Alkali Flat Central Historic District and Contributing Resources: The Central Alkali Flat district contains the largest variety of building styles, ages and types in the area. The components are largely nineteenth century Queen Anne and Eastlake cottages, and early twentieth century Colonial Revival and Craftsman in style. However, there are examples of Greek Revival, Gothic Revival, Moorish design, Second Empire, Stick Style, Prairie School, Federal and Italianate modes. There is also a mixture of building types ranging from small, early, single family residences to larger apartment buildings constructed after 1900.

North Alkali Flat Historic District

Description: This small area of nineteenth-century houses centers on D Street between 11th and 12 Streets. The Maria Hastings Building is its stellar contributor. Approximately six buildings within the district have been demolished or removed. However, the area's visual coherence and its links to Sacramento's architectural development have weakened substantially.

New boundaries are not being proposed but because so many of the district's buildings have been demolished or removed in the past decade, the City of Sacramento should reexamine its commitment to preserving this area.

Boulevard Park Historic District

Boulevard Park is one of the most distinctive Districts in the Old City. Except for a few houses around its edges and a few which were moved into the area, it was almost entirely built between 1905 and 1915, when the old racetrack on the site was sold by Park Realty. The predominant styles were bungalows and Cube Types usually in a blend of the Craftsman and Colonial Revival styles.

The Boulevard Park Historic District is in two but distinct and related parts. The main part is focused on the north-south boulevards at 21st and 22nd Streets. As a general rule, Cube Type houses filled the sites on the boulevards and bungalows were built on the cross streets. At the corners of F, G, H, and I Streets, large architect-designed houses were built, and on H and I Streets, these large and imposing houses continued to be built eastward past the edge of the old racetrack land into a neighborhood of earlier structures. The 2300 block of H Street consists of one of the most impressive rows of late Victorian architecture in Sacramento. Although these houses are different in style from the rest of Boulevard Park, they are similar in character to those large and impressive houses immediately to the west in scale, height, rhythm, and setback, and clearly relate to the later buildings. The scale of the whole area is generally larger than that of the older neighborhoods and is defined by the Cube Type. In addition to the exceptional architectural cohesiveness of this area, it is tied together by prominent features of landscaping. The boulevards and mid-block open spaces between 20th and 21st, F and H are unique to this neighborhood. The trees are important features throughout the City, but the northwest quadrant of the Old City, beginning with Boulevard Park, has the finest trees of all. They help to link this neighborhood together and to the fine but generally post-1920 neighborhood to the east.

Boulevard Park is bound on the west by a half-block buffer of small houses between 20th Street and the railroad, on the north by the levee, on the east by a post-1920 neighborhood linked to Boulevard Park by landscape features and style of architecture and on the south by a generally mixed use neighborhood.

The Contributing resources in this district include a distinctive grouping of Bungalow residences with features and characteristics that strongly reflect the design, materials and image of the architecture in the Craftsman style during the period of 1900 to 1915. C Street Commercial Historic District

This small block face of structures is visually related in terms of scale, style and materials. The structures are not individually distinguished architecturally but are attractive representatives of the commercial buildings of the 1920 era. The grouping portrays an unusually cohesive block face with few, if any, alterations.

The boundaries are well defined by vacant land and new construction.

“C” Street Industrial Historic District

This Historic District reflects Sacramento’s role in the industrial development of the Sacramento Valley and of California. The buildings vary in style from Vernacular Industrial to Modern and in time from 1914 to 1938. Slight Classical ornamentation is found in the earlier building with the streamline look found on the newer buildings.

The boundaries are defined by the railway tracks to the north, a City park to the west, residential to the east, and surface parking, new commercial and residential to the south.

Capitol Avenue Historic District

The Capitol Avenue Historic District was built in two major periods, the 1870's and the 1890's. The many Italianates in this area, especially along P Street, from the 1870's give it a distinctive character. No other part of the City has so many houses of this style. Mixed in with the Italianates are simple high basement cottages, which are very sympathetic in style, as well as a large number of larger Queen Annes and Colonial Revivals from the 1890's. Buildings of the two styles relate well on the street, as they share a vertical directional expression, rhythm, materials, color, and setback. The juxtaposition of these two distinct styles of architecture provides a graphic picture of the history of the neighborhood, demonstrating two periods of prosperity when the area remained desirable. The neighborhood has suffered some intrusions of modern apartment construction. Like many other older parts of Sacramento, however, the tree-lined streets provide continuity even to the architecturally eroded areas. Because the trees serve in this way, the effects of the modern construction, no matter how bad or insensitive it might be, are lessened when the new building is set back the same distance as the houses of the original neighborhood.

This neighborhood once extended further to the north and west but has been eroded by modern apartment houses to the west and commercial expansion of the downtown to the north. There is a railroad half a block to the east, and to the south the houses are generally newer and smaller and have a different character.

Capitol Historic District

The Capitol Historic District is strongly influenced by the presence of the California State Capitol built between 1860 and 1874 in the Classical Revival Style. The State Capitol is located at the western end of the 34-acre Capitol Park. The Park also holds the Insectary Building built in the Craftsman Style which is now used as the State Office of Capitol Grounds. To the northwest of the Capitol is Office Building One. This five-story structure is in the Neo-Classical Style and was constructed in 1925. An almost identical five-story structure is found to the south of Office Building One. This is the Library and Courts Building built in 1928, also Neo-Classical Style. Both buildings flank a circular landscaped fountain located within a traffic roundabout. These three prominent buildings and the roundabout are key elements to the Historic District. To the south of the Capitol and the Park are located other private and government buildings. These include the Lewis Apartments, an eight story structure, as well as government structures ranging in style from the State Printing Office (1922) in the Utilitarian Style with Classical influences to the Moderne lines of the State Department of Consumer Affairs Building (1940), the Franchise Tax Building, Moderne with Gothic Revival influences (1927), and the simple Moderne detailing of the Department of Transportation Buildings, and the Department of Food and Agriculture Buildings.

The District is bounded to the north by L Street, and the multi-story commercial buildings located on the north side of L, by 9th Street on the west with its private and Federal buildings, by 15th Street to the east of Capitol Park with parking lots and the Capitol Area Development Authority apartment structures. The south boundary is less well defined geographically, but is quite clear visually as parking lots start where buildings stop.

The theme of the District is governmental. The buildings, which represent government use, are from different eras and of varied styles, but the visual boundary is quite clear between the area and the buildings to the north, west and east. This is due as much to the type and design of the area structures as it is to the landscaped open spaces between the District and the adjacent streets. The demolition of adjacent buildings and their replacement with surface parking lots clearly defines the southern boundary.

CAPITOL MANSIONS HISTORIC DISTRICT

The Contributing resources in this district reflect a group of larger, stately structures that were originally single-family residences. The district also includes two Landmark churches. Cathedral Square Historic District

The strongest theme in this District is that given by the Cathedral of the Blessed Sacrament built in 1887. This structure dominates the view from 11th, 12th and K Streets. The retail and hotel structure facing the Cathedral, even though its use has been changed, still supports the architectural feel of the area. The 11th and L Streets building and the Senator Hotel Building, even though a block away from the Cathedral, continued the same architectural quality of the District. This architectural elegance reflects to some degree the association of the area to the adjacent Capitol to the south. Although the District is only separated from the Capitol by L Street, it is the heavy landscaping of the Capitol grounds as well as the dramatic change of use that provides the southern boundary.

The Historic District is generally bounded by the K Street alleyway to the north between 10th and 12th Streets and L Street to the south.

Fremont Park Historic District

This Historic District consists of one block facing Fremont Park, which is the focus of the District. The predominant style of the buildings is high basement Queen Anne, with the prominent gables serving to give continuity to the architecture and provide an impressive frontage on the Park. An unusual feature of the buildings is that most have been altered, some very severely, but nevertheless they serve a very important urban function in the group. There is a rhythm to the shapes and spacing of the buildings, and most of all, to the gables that give this area its continuity. Most of the houses were built in the late 1890's although two Craftsman apartments built after 1910 and one older Italianate was moved to its site in 1901. These three buildings give variety to the area without detracting from its coherence, and the apartment at the corner of 16th and O serves the important function of giving definition to the block by its sitting.

The Fremont Park Historic District is surrounded on all sides by commercial land uses, particularly on 15th and 16th Streets. It is an anchor of visual stability in a changing neighborhood.

Marshall Park Historic District

The Marshall Park Historic District is a small and diverse neighborhood linked together by its relationship to Marshall Park. It consists of two streets, I and J, which run up to the Park, and one block of 27th Street, which faces it.

The dominant architectural style is the Queen Anne with multiple gable roofs, notably in most of the J Street houses, and in the very imposing house at the corner of I Street across from the Park. All of these houses were built between 1895 and 1900. There are also apartment houses on both I and 27th Streets, which show the influence of the Craftsman style. The surrounding residential neighborhood is supportive of the Historic District in style and character but has had many modern intrusions and lacks the cohesiveness of these few blocks.

Memorial Auditorium Historic District

This District essentially constitutes the Memorial Auditorium and the block face opposite the Auditorium and the half block to the east on the south side of J Street. The scale and materials of some of the structures are strongly contributory to the Auditorium. Some portions of the streetscape are minimally intact but the District could be increasingly supportive of the Memorial Auditorium if it were rehabilitated sensitively in the future.

The boundaries are defined by new construction, parking lots and non-contributory older buildings.

Merchant Street Historic District

The Merchant Street Historic District is significant as the site of Sacramento's early 20th century banking center. The District also has the distinction of including Pioneer Hall, an early structure which retains a high degree of design integrity and has strong historical associations. The time span for the District ranges from 1868 for Pioneer Hall, to 1921 for the Merchant's National Bank Building. The District includes three banks, which relate in use, building material and classical detailing. The grouping of mature visually cohesive trees along 7th Street is an important feature of the area.

The District comprises a specific and distinct environment in scale, time frame, and general elegance of the building style. All structures show strong classical influence on their architectural design. The structures exhibit deeply molded decorative detailing and surfaces of granite, concrete, terra cotta, and brick. These materials and classical detailing contrast sharply with the surrounding modern structures.

[Cesar Chavez] Plaza Park/CBD Historic District

The Plaza Park/Central Business District Historic District represents the core of Sacramento's business district with a particular focus on the era between 1910-1930. Of additional importance is the age of some of the structures which date back to the very early commercial development of the City when J Street was one of the major transportation routes to the northern gold fields. Many of the buildings along J street still retain evidence of the original structures built prior to the raising of the streets in their basements and under the sidewalks. Many alleys in this area still retain their cobblestone paving. A number of the sidewalks in the area have their original curbstones.

Poverty Ridge Historic District

Poverty Ridge is one of the most distinctive neighborhoods in the Old City for several reasons. It is built on a slight hill, the houses are large and typically set on broad lots, and it was the wealthiest part of Sacramento when it was built. In addition, there are a great many houses which have been influenced by the Prairie Style with its long horizontal roof lines, banding of windows, and characteristic detail which gives the District a unique architectural character. When it was built it would have been an up-to-date neighborhood in almost any city in the United States.

The neighborhood dates from the turn of the century to about 1915, although there are some fine later houses as well. The focal point of the District was originally along 21st and 22nd Streets although there have been serious losses on 21st Street in recent years. Other important houses on the cross streets are mostly at the corners. There are also many Craftsman houses in the neighborhood including many bungalows in the block bounded by S and T, 20th and 21st Streets. While not a part of Poverty Ridge proper, this block was developed within its sphere, apparently as a middle-class effort to associate with the prestige of the wealthier Poverty Ridge.

The boundaries of the District are naturally defined by the contours of the ridge for which the neighborhood is named. Below the ridge to the east is a large less cohesive neighborhood of bungalows and other post-1920 houses. The freeway runs near the natural southern boundary and industrial development begins above S Street near the natural northern boundary. On the west, the boundary line is drawn irregularly to include two important houses on the west side of 21st Street but to exclude the modern intrusions that have eroded the quality of the area. The square block at the northwest corner between S and T, 20th and 21st Streets, is bound on three sides by industrial land uses, and on the east by a part of Poverty Ridge which has suffered commercial intrusions on the east side of 21st Street.

R Street Historic District

The buildings within this District face R Street from 10th Street running east to 12th Street. The construction dates run from 1910 to 1930 with the use concentrated in warehousing, commercial distribution and light industrial.

Inasmuch as Sacramento's early development was so closely tied to the evolution of the railroads, those structures still remaining along the R Street tracks are of particular importance in reflecting this connection. Remaining railroad-related enclaves of structures are rare along the tracks. This grouping whose uses were related to railroad access and transportation needs reflect that important relationship. The boundaries are well defined by a change in building styles to the north and south and newer construction to the west and east.

Ordinance # 96-009 April 2, 1996

Sacramento City College Historic District

The Sacramento City College Historic District consists of five buildings, designed by Sacramento architect, Harry J. Devine, Sr., under the Public Works Administration (PWA) grants. The Annex, the first project, consisting of the Library and Classrooms building, the Gymnasium, and the Fine Arts Building, was built around a Quadrangle, already partially surrounded by the existing, now razed, Romanesque Revival buildings of the mid 1920's campus construction program. These new buildings were spaced among the existing ones. The other two buildings of the Historic District, the Engineering Technology Building (now the Fine Arts Center), and the Aeronautical Addition, were built two years later as part of the extensions, and are located to the east of the auditorium, not on the Quadrangle. Also included in the extensions were the Cafeteria and Student Management Building, and the Home Economics Building. The former lost its integrity with a 1963 addition, and the latter has been demolished and replaced.

All of the buildings have the PWA Moderne style mixed with elements of traditional revival styles. They are characterized by monolithic reinforced concrete elements softened by brick elements. The buildings are tied to one another stylistically, and by the materials and the repetition of design elements. While individually several of the buildings have had additions and alterations, both the individual buildings and the District as a whole retain integrity of location, design, materials, workmanship, feeling, and association. The setting has been altered by changes to the Quadrangle, the loss of the 1920's buildings, and the addition of the newer buildings.

South Side Historic District

The South Side Historic District is the largest District in the City. But, it is linked by its relationship to the South Side Park itself, which divides the District into two distinct sub-areas. West of the Park is the largest unified area of predominantly simple high basement cottages in the Old City. Therefore, although there are many vacant lots and deteriorating structures, the neighborhood is largely free of modern intrusions. Many of these vacant or nearly vacant areas are included within the boundaries of the District, such as the northwest corner of this area along 3rd Street, because of a unit of landscaping and a historic continuity with the west.

Most of the houses are simple high basement cottages or high basement Queen Annes built for working-class tenants and owners between 1895 and 1905. The 400 block of T Street is the most complete block in the District and represents in microcosm the rest of the District. It is a block of several different styles all linked by high basements and in rhythm of spacing, height, scale, setback, materials, and texture.

The sub-area east of the Park is similar in its styles and building patterns although it is less easy to define and characterize. Rather than vacant lots, it has been intruded upon by modern apartments. Some of it was built somewhat later, and the general character of the buildings, although similar in style, are slightly larger and more ornamented for a more prosperous group of residents. Much of the District consists of simple high basement cottages but is frequently punctuated by larger houses in the Queen Anne and Colonial Revival styles. There are several large intrusions within the District itself as well as at its edges, which accounts for its irregular shape. The William Land School might be considered a secondary focal point after South Side Park. In the panhandle that stretches to the east, there are many bungalows including some very fine rows on 13th and U Streets. Although the styles of the buildings change and with them the directional expression, height, materials and texture, the neighborhood is linked by its tree lined streets. As the change of styles is from contiguous periods of time rather than by separate ones, it represents a neighborhood that was in a continuous process of building by similar kinds of people rather than sociologically distinct neighborhood.

The District is bounded roughly by the Freeway on the west and south, by industrial development above S Street, and by newer and less cohesive neighborhoods to the east and south.

Washington Historic District

The Washington District covers a large area with a great many significant structures. The Historic District has suffered somewhat by intrusions of modern apartment buildings but it remains a cohesive neighborhood with some similarities to Alkali Flat.

The buildings date from the 1870's and 1880's, but there are a great many buildings from the 1890's and a number from the 1900's as well. Despite the very long period during which this area was built up, it retains a surprising visual coherence due to the distinctive qualities of Sacramento architecture. Chief among these is the persistence of the high basement buildings, which gives continuity to Italianate, Eastlake, Queen Anne, Colonial Revival, and a variety of vernacular building types over a period of 60 years. It is the high basement buildings in all its many stylistic clothing that provides the dominant fabric of this District. Perhaps the finest row of diverse high basement buildings in Sacramento is along F Street in the Washington District, culminating in the 1400 Block. Like Alkali Flat, the rows of high basement buildings are punctuated now and then by larger houses and apartments, which help to give definition and identity to the immediate surroundings. In another form which is typical of Sacramento, many of these apartments are designed in the manner of single-family houses so as not to disrupt visually the consistent character of the streets. Most of these buildings are on F and G and 13th Streets. The best example is perhaps at 1221-23 F. The majority of the buildings in the District were built for working-class families although there were more prosperous homes mixed in which like the apartment houses serve to give definition and identity to their immediate surroundings.

The Washington District Historic District is bound most distinctly on the west, east, and north by commercial spillover from 12th and 16th Streets, and by industries below the levee. On the south, the neighborhood once extended further but has been eroded by offices, commercial, and institutional land uses.

Washington School Historic District

The Washington School Historic District is similar to the other north side Historic Districts to the west in its general character, although it is also a transitional neighborhood architecturally. Like the others, it consists predominantly of working class cottages, but of a somewhat later date. There is also a mixture of larger and more imposing houses and apartments on F Street, which is the main artery of the neighborhood.

Construction began in significant numbers in the 1880's and continued through 1905 with the high basement Eastlakes, Queen Annes, Colonial Revivals, and vernacular buildings. After about 1905, there were Cube Types and Bungalows built in the eastern end, principally along F Street. The District has two principal focuses, one of them being the Washington School itself, which is fronted by impressive rows on F and 18th Streets. The large trees on the streets around the school give it further unity. The other focal point of the area is F Street, which runs past the school and has many larger houses and apartment buildings, which demonstrates an evolution in styles as the construction moved east. The mixture of newer styles here is nicely integrated with the predominant 19th century high basement structures because they are located principally in larger buildings on the main thoroughfare and in that way are highlighted and allowed to assert themselves.

The Washington School Historic District is bound on the north and east by the railroad and related industrial land uses. Its boundaries to the west and south are less distinct. The neighborhood used to extend in those directions but has been eroded by commercial spillover from 16th Street and modern apartments on the west and by office, commercial and institutional land uses on the south.

WINN PARK HISTORIC DISTRICT

The Contributing resources in this district are primarily residential with a variety of architectural styles reflecting the residential evolution of Sacramento from the late nineteenth century through the 1940s, an era when Sacramento was expanding its presence and character as a substantial twentieth-century city. The features and characteristic reflect the growth of a strong middle class in architectural styles in design and materials, extend from the late Queen Anne, through Colonial and Classical Revival themes, including the Period Revival styles of the 1930s and 1940s. The overall continuity of scale, size and landscaping that is particularly enhanced by its large street trees, generous street widths and front yard greenery is an important characteristic of the district.

2.3 Special Planning Districts, Survey Areas, and Individual Resources-Special Protection

City of Sacramento Historic Resources

Railyards Special Planning District

This area is subject to Title 15 via Ordinance # 99-046

Railyards Special Planning District

Sacramento's earliest commercial activities occurred in the vicinity of the confluence of the American and Sacramento Rivers. With the gold rush and the steady stream of riverboats, the Sacramento embarcadero became a very busy transshipment point and the town grew outward from the waterfront. The early years were plagued with floods through the marshy area immediately north of the central city. With the coming of the railroad, this open area in close proximity to the city was ideal for a terminus and during the 1860's, it was filled in. It became the western end of the transcontinental railroad and grew rapidly.

With the growth of the California economy, the railroad terminus became a major hub in western transportation. California agricultural production flowed out of California by rail and riverboat and products and people flowed into the Central Valley. The rail yards and the waterfront grew to keep pace with California's burgeoning economy and position in international commerce.

The rail yards became the major shops for the Southern Pacific Railroad. It contained the principal fabrication and repair facilities for the railroad and until early in World War II, it was the largest industrial site west of the Mississippi River. It was completely self-contained and was capable of everything from silver-plating the passenger car silver ware to construction of a locomotive from the ground up. In its heydays, the payroll exceeded 3,000 men. The western terminus also contained a large passenger depot and the railway Express Agency building.

With the rise of airline travel after World War II and competition with the growing highway network, the railroad activity declined. The work in the shops was cut back with changeover to diesel electric locomotives and the passenger traffic fell. Sacramento water borne transportation activities were relocated to West Sacramento with the completion of the Sacramento River Deep Water Channel. And by the early 1970's, the completion of Interstate 5, between the old riverfront embarcadero and the rail yards cut off river to rail direct access.

Maintenance and operational activities have declined and changed. The old Depot has become the Amtrak Station and there is still freight traffic through the area. Amtrak has cross-country trains operating out of the Depot, but most of the passenger volume is commute traffic to and from the Bay Area, Stockton, and the Central Valley. There is local freight switching for some of the industries in the adjacent Richards Boulevard Historic District on the north side of the rail yards, but the rail activity is a shadow of its former self. The Railroad Depot and the Railway Express Agency buildings remain but are significantly under utilized.

Richards Boulevard Special Planning District

Richards Blvd. Special Planning District Survey

An Historic and Architectural Survey was conducted within the Richards Boulevard Area for the purpose of identifying significant cultural resources. The Survey process included extensive historic research about and within the study area to gain an understanding of its past, its present evolution, and a context for the evaluation of its resources. This information will guide the planning process and help determine the opportunity or necessity for building or structure preservation within the area.

The survey utilized the given boundaries as delineated in the Boundary Map and according to criteria established by the City of Sacramento. This survey has identified and evaluated significant non-residential properties within the study area, constructed between 1839 (the first western settlement in Sacramento) and 1950. A wide range of resources was utilized in the preparation of historic documentation of inventory, historic background, and findings. Resources included original government documents and archives, personal and public histories, periodicals and publications, private documents and collections, and oral histories.

Criteria for Evaluation

Evaluation criteria utilized in this survey are those established by the National Register of Historic Places and by the city in its previous survey update. Evaluation criteria are based primarily upon associations of property with persons or events possessing a degree of local historic or cultural importance, or upon architectural values and/or noteworthy construction techniques, and utilize the National Register of Historic Places criteria, described as follows:

'The quality of significance in American history, architecture, archeology, and culture in districts, sites, buildings, structures, and objects that possess integrity of location, design, setting, materials, workmanship, felling, and association, and:

- A. that are associated with events that have made a significant contribution to the broad patterns of our history; or
- B. that are associated with the lives of persons significant in our past; or
- C. that embody the distinctive characteristics of a type, period, or method of construction, or that represent the work of a master, or that possess high artistic values, or that represent a significant and distinguishable entity whose components may lack individual distinction; or
- D. that have yielded, or may likely to yield, information important in prehistory or history.

Summary

The Richards Boulevard Project Area, as currently defined, encompasses the Southern Pacific Railyards as well as lands between the northern edge of the Old City grid and the American River. This area has experienced several events over time that have shaped its current uses and conditions. This piece of land, nestled in a curve of the American River, has long been subject to floods and marshland conditions. Its location, adjacent to one of the West's largest industrial sites, has also limited its development for other than primary industrial uses. The structures found in the Area largely reflect that heritage and include attractive grouping of brick buildings used for industrial and warehouse functions.

Also located in the Area are a significant water filtration plant, an important former power generation and distribution facility, and the former city incinerator. In contrast, the Area additionally contains small and non-conforming neighborhoods of residential buildings. Though rather modest in size and design, the Dreher-Basler neighborhood represents a small residential island amid the busy thoroughfares, warehouses, industrial and light manufacturing structures, distribution companies, and transient population. These residential buildings are not treated in this report.

The social history of the Area includes, as well, an attraction to the transients, the homeless, and the seasonal agricultural workers that dates back to at least the Great Depression and the creation of Hoovervilles and hobo jungles in the Area and along the American River. This activity has been widespread throughout the area for a number of years, and appears to have affected land use and development patterns of the area to some extent, as well as that of the Gardenland area to the north across the American River. This tradition continues to the present, with some support agencies now located in the area to assist these groups of people.

Two potential districts appear to meet the criteria for listing in the National Register of Historic Places and the Sacramento Register: the Central Pacific/Southern Pacific Locomotive Works and the industrial area along North 16th Street, with its collection of attractive utilitarian brick buildings. The Sacramento City Waste Water Treatment Plant complex also appears to meet National Register of Historic Places eligibility criteria, as does the nearby former P.G. and E. Power Plant designed by Willis Polk. Some additional structures located within the Project Area appear to meet criteria for listing in the National Register of Historic Places and the Sacramento Register.¹
