

STICKY SPIDER WEB

gross motor activity

This sticky spider web activity is perfect for indoor play, and can be done in any doorway, hallway or other somewhat narrow place that you have. I have pocket doors that are about six feet wide and it worked perfectly.

I used painter's tape and made a spider web to span the width of the door.

I only made it on the top half of the doorway, because I knew if I went to the floor, the boys would be trying to run through it and tear it down. While I taped up the sticky spider web, I had Henry rummage through our recycling bin for some newspaper.

He's a perfect little scavenger!

I asked him to separate the newspapers and scrunch each one into a ball like we had done for the newspaper throwing game.

Then the boys had a blast throwing the newspaper balls into the spider web to see if it would catch them (just like a real one would catch a fly!).
